

Mutiny on Freighter Put Down

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Navy said today that it had received a message saying "everything is under control" on the U.S. freighter William Carson, whose master had reported the crew was mutinous.

The navy had alerted the aircraft carrier Cora 1 Sea to prepare to send planes to locate the 7,000-ton liberty ship in the Azores area. The cost guard cutter Campwell was under full speed toward the scene.

Rear Adm. A. J. McLean, commander aboard the battleship Missouri in the Azores waters, messaged U. S. Navy headquarters here that the trouble apparently was quelled. The Missouri had sailed two days ago from Gibraltar for Cuba.

The Carson is operated by the South Atlantic Steamship Company, Havana, Ga. It last was reported 250 miles northeast of the Azores on a voyage from Genoa to Nova Scotia. Its captain, E. W. Braithwaite of Savannah, radioed last night:

"Crew mutinous. Cannot control. Please come at once."

Adm. McLean messaged that he had been in contact with the 14-156-ton American tanker Hampton Roads, which had received this message from the Carson:

"Everything is under control." Braithwaite had reported the Hampton Roads within sight on his last night.

The U. S. Navy here had directed the admiral to "investigate" the trouble aboard the Carson. His flagship, the Missouri, is leading a midshipmen's practice cruise.

Naval headquarters here said published reports that 13 ships had been sent toward the Carson were "absurd." The entire squadron grouped around the Missouri is the naval spokesman said, "but we have had no reports of any ships being diverted."

Candidates Range All Over State

By The Associated Press

Gubernatorial candidates ranged to virtually all sections of Arkansas today (Tuesday), hunting and giving votes they hope to bag two weeks hence.

Horace Thompson speaks tonight at Bentonville in the extreme Northwest corner of the state; Charles Fleming was to be at Dumas and McGehee, almost as far to the southeast as Bentonville is to the northwest.

Sidney McMath was to speak at Hardy in the northern part of the state, nearly to the Missouri line, at 2 p.m. and then head southward for another speech at Newport at 8 p.m. Jack Holt's schedule calls for a speech at Camden, in south Arkansas, at 8 p.m.

James Mackrell was in the east central section of the state. He was to broadcast from Spring Lake camp near Des Arc in the afternoon and to speak at Cotton Plant at 8 p.m.

John Lonsdale, who has been campaigning as actively as any of his six opponents, was unreported as to specific location.

The seventh candidate, William T. Jennings of Texarkana, has not been waging an active speaking campaign.

Their candidate will not be present, but Pulaski county supporters of Thompson plan a rally at Little Rock's Hotel Lafayette tonight. Frank Snellgrove, unopposed candidate for state representative from Craighead county, is to be the principal speaker.

Thompson on headquarters announced former Conway County Judge J. L. Williams of Morrilton and F. Sloan of Black Rock, had

Germans Are Fascinated by Sight of 'Raisin Bombers' Bringing Food, Not Death

By EDWIN SHANKE

Berlin, July 12 (AP)—"Look! Mutli, here comes the raisin bomber again."

Smiling Germans standing in a food line looked skyward where a huge American transport plane with another seven tons of food circled over blockaded Berlin.

"Yes, Hans, and sausage and bread bombers too," answered the youngster's mother.

That little exchange—picturing children's delight with their first raisins since the end of the war—shows their interest in more solid nourishment—exemplifies how well western Berliners are standing up to the Russian blockade.

They are expressing no fears that the Western Allies will fail to maintain their railroads. And to date there has been no serious effect on their officially set rations.

They are receiving the full 1,550 calories daily ration.

Germans in Western Berlin are eating mainly dehydrated potatoes. Shipping them in by air that way means a tremendous saving in weight where every ounce counts.

"Actually we aren't any worse off in this respect than we have been in the past," the Germans explain. "July is a normally scarce month for potatoes because it bridges the gap between the old and new harvests."

Balancing that is a treat for Berliners—a ration of 50 grains of wheat daily made of American flour. A greater percentage of American white flour is now being flown in and less of other grains used in making the dark bread which Berliners have been eating for years.

In the Russian sector, however, Germany says the quality of bread has deteriorated because bakers there no longer benefit from white flour which used to go into a city-wide food pool.

The average Western Berliner is getting canned meat, powdered milk and dried vegetables instead of fresh. That's where they feel the Russian blockade the most because it cut off the supply of fresh summer vegetables which mainly came from the surrounding Russian zone.

"We're no worse off than we were before either in quantity or variety," the Western Berliner says. "It's really the 50 per cent cut in gas for cooking that hurts. We've got the same amount of food but how to cook it is the problem."

A single person is now limited to about 25 minutes of gas daily for a single burner. That means he must throw everything he has into one pot for a single warm meal a day.

Many Berliners again are on a ceaseless hunt for wood so they can stretch the gas supply by using a wood cookstove or building a fire on their balconies.

Allied nations haven't noticed any great difference yet in food. When the Soviet blockade clamped down on the city, the Allies had weeks ahead in warehouses and it is no problem for the Allied air forces to keep well ahead of the Allied demand.

President Puts

by Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, and to return to Washington immediately after a short address to the convention.

McGrath said he hopes the convention can meet in almost continuous session tomorrow to wind up its business.

This would mean jamming through adoption of a platform and selection of presidential and vice presidential candidates into one day.

A reporter asked what was the reason for the speedup.

"The heat of Philadelphia," McGrath replied.

All signs had pointed strongly to Barkley for the last 12 hours at some big city leaders.

Including Frank Hague of Jersey City and Paul Fitzpatrick of New York, were taking the view that some younger man should have the No. 2 spot.

After Barkley had provided the convention's first breath of excitement—a 28 minute stampede for his vice presidential candidacy last night—the leaders huddled with Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing in the convention hall.

Howard McGrath.

Ewing came out like a man who had swallowed the canary of a Barkley vice presidential boom and looked for his own to mumble. But he wouldn't talk.

Against this, Leslie L. Biffle, secretary at arms of the convention and one of Truman's close advisers, told reporters after a stop party for Barkley that the Kentuckian is in.

Often a Democratic keynoter, Barkley never has been a vice presidential brigand although he was among the contenders in 1940 and again in 1944. That was the year Mr. Truman was chosen for second place on the Franklin D. Roosevelt ticket.

Robert Hannegan, former Democratic national chairman who helped put Mr. Truman on the ticket in 1944, said it looked to him as though the demonstration "has decided the issue" for Barkley.

He brought the house down with a rally at Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP nominee, who called in his acceptance speech for a house clearing to sweep the cobwebs out of Washington.

"When the Democratic party look over the government of the United States 16 years ago," the white clad, perspiring Kentuckian declared, "even the spiders were so weak that they could not weave a cobweb in any department of the government of the United States."

The delegates liked it and they stood up and yelled.

James C. McGowan, California state chairman, came up and put his arm around Barkley and to get a cheer from the delegates.

Roosevelt said the Kentuckian had made one of the greatest speeches I ever heard in my life. But he didn't make any real endorsement of the Kentuckian.

Barkley himself wasn't too complimentary about the whole thing. He said he just wasn't commenting. Later he said he hadn't heard any word from President Truman—even congratulations on his keynote speech—and "didn't expect any."

There was no doubt among his friends, however, that he will take the nomination of the Democratic donkey rears up and gives it to him—even if President Truman doesn't come through with the final ok.

In fact, some unreconstructed Southerners were suggesting that it might be a good idea to run Barkley against Mr. Truman instead of Gov. Ben Laney, of Arkansas, their announced opposition candidate.

But less excitable, Southerners happy at the thought of getting a border state vice presidential candidate, counseled against that.

With all of this backstage maneuvering going on, the convention sessions listened again to speeches by deserving Democrats. Tonight House Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas will take over the gavel from Barkley and his fire to the barage directed against the Republicans.

Just ahead of Rayburn's speech, the convention program listed a memorial service for Franklin D. Roosevelt and servicemen who died in World War II.

Tug of War Between Russia and West Can't Continue Without World Explosion over confident in thinking that the problem can be solved without burning more powder.

The Bolsheviks claim the Western Allies have no rights in Berlin. This claim isn't true but, in the long run, it's a dangerous scheme of torturing 2,400,000 helpless civilians with starvation.

The big question, of course, is what sort of break it will be. The world as a whole won't stand for it. The application of economic and diplomatic sanctions on Russia by the United Nations could be a terrible punishment.

What Russia is aiming at in the long run is control of all Germany, including the wealth of the great industrial Ruhr. The struggle over Berlin is just a stepping stone to the larger ambition.

If Russia could subvert the Reich and bring it completely under Moscow's domination, then she would have much reason to boast that she had taken a long step towards the conquest of all Europe.

However, the Moscowites haven't given any indication that they intend to push the project of the Reich. As a matter of fact, they are creating a nasty situation in Berlin, have for several days been advertising in the Communist press that the way to settle the difference of the four powers, if the Western powers will negotiate, then presumably the blockade will be called off.

And what would be the idea of the "peace" conversations? Well, the Russians want the Allies to abandon the project of establishing a German state out of the three Western zones of occupation. That would give the Bolsheviks a further opportunity to try to consolidate the four zones into one Red Germany.

It certainly wouldn't be surprising if the democracies did agree to confer with the Russians again, despite previous failures. But it would be surprising if the Western powers made any concession which would strengthen Moscow's hand in Germany.

Meantime William H. Draper, U. S. undersecretary of war, who is in Turkey, says the situation in Berlin cannot be solved. He told reporters the Western powers are and must be in unanimous agreement on a firm stand.

All that does add up to a grim picture and we can agree that these are fateful days. But while fully appreciating the dangers, I think we are safe in saying that we may expect the situation to be ironed out without resort to the conflict, at least in the near future.

True, the roll of the drums of war isn't so loud in America as it is in Europe which provides the battle fields for the global upheavals. Still I don't believe we are

Steak Stunt Effective at Convention

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP)—This is about a raw steak, held aloft in the dainty hands of a lady wearing diamonds.

The Democrats are feeling a little better because of this stunt, plus some sally oratory and 75 minutes of strenuous exercise in the steam room.

Of course, they still lack a presidential candidate who will be acceptable to all sections of the party. But they may have found a nominee for vice-president, of whom more will be said here.

It was a real one, a medium-sized sirloin, raw, red limp and damp. It was introduced in evidence, so to speak, by Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the women's division of the national committee. She was proving a point with it.

Mrs. Edwards, handsome and fashionable in after-dinner black, brought a market bag with her, and she made her speech, blaming the Republicans for the high cost of food. The bag contained a quart of milk, a pound of margarine—and the red meat.

The price of each was stated by the speaker. And if her object was to stimulate her hearers with the steak she achieved it in full measure. They gasped, gulped, then laughed and cheered.

It hung in her hand, oozing limply down between her fingers, partially obscuring the diamond rings of her left hand. It looked, somehow, like a red jellyfish, looking at a trident encircled with jewels.

Mrs. Edwards told her audience how much she had paid for it. She put it down on the rostrum beside a microphone. Because of the slant in the rostrum, the steak began to creep downhill until it was dripping partly over the edge.

She retrieved it, to the delight of the photographers who asked her to hold it up again "for just one more." Mrs. Edwards complied.

This could not have continued much longer. The convention hall was so hot that, very shortly, the steak would have begun to broil. She tossed it into a large white box with gauze strips that also housed a large toy balloon. The balloon was supposed to symbolize inflation.

Mrs. Edwards' steak and the rolling periods of Senator Alben W. Barkley's keynote speech, delivered just before the steak stunt, in a mood they have not known since the convention began.

Budget Group Will Study Actual Needs

Little Rock, July 13 (AP)—The budget committee of the Arkansas Legislative Council plans "on the ground" surveys to the greatest possible extent to determine monetary needs of the various state departments and institutions.

That's the joint announcement from Rep. James B. Campbell, Hot Springs, council chairman, and state Senator Clyde Byrd, El Dorado, budget committee chairman.

The two legislators said they believed personal conferences by members of the budget subcommittee with department and institution heads would be more effective than hearings in arriving at a true understanding of financial requirements.

The legislative council has replaced the former pre-session joint legislative budget committee as the group to make budget recommendations to the general assembly.

The council's budget subcommittee has been divided into nine subcommittees, each with the job of reviewing budget requests from seven agencies.

Subcommittees will make recommendations to the budget committee, the committee to the council, and the council to the 1949 legislature.

Subcommittee chairmen have been named, all of them holdover legislators or legislators unopposed for re-election. Other members, not all of whom will be members of the legislature, will be named later.

The subcommittee chairmen: Senators Byrd, Russell, Elrod, El-Payan, and Lawrence Blackwell; Reps. Dewey, Parnell, and Louis H. Chastain.

Of the poisonous snakes, rattlesnakes are probably the most widely distributed. They are present in many vacation spots, including much of the Rocky Mountain area and most of the southwest. It is claimed that the danger from rattlesnake bites in the United States is increasing because of the increase in outdoor recreation.

The best way to treat snake bites is not to get bitten at all. High leather shoes or leather puttees will stop the bite. People who vacation in regions where rattlesnakes are found ought to give this matter some thought. In one report from Texas about one-third of those bitten died, so this matter is really serious.

Pine Bluffian One of Flight Leaders on Atlantic Hop

Pine Bluff, July 13 —(AP)—Lt. Col. William D. Ritchie, one of the four flight leaders of the 56th fighter group now engaged in the transatlantic jet plane crossing, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ritchie of Pine Bluff.

A graduate of Pine Bluff high school, he enlisted in the air corps in 1941 and was commissioned a second lieutenant five days after Pearl Harbor. He flew 400 combat missions over Europe during the war.

Recently Ritchie has been stationed at Selfridge Field, near Detroit. He is a member of the Red Cross chapter in the city.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. E. Long. The song of the month "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was sung by the entire group. The Devotional, Prov. 15:1-10 was read by the hostess.

Minutes were read and approved, and plans were made for an August picnic. The club decided to have an ice cream supper at the home of Mrs. Herman Hurd on Tuesday afternoon, August 3 beginning at 7 p.m.

The club will meet in September at the home of Mrs. J. R. Perrell. The demonstration will be making a scarf box.

Subject matter leaders gave helpful hints on gardening, poultry and landscaping.

The demonstration this month was making a dress form. The form was almost completed. A day will be set later to finish it.

One new member, Mrs. Joe Fincher, was added this month. The meeting closed on time and cakes and drinks were served.

DOROTHY DIX Bringing Up Daughter

Most mothers strive to give their daughters an education, but few mothers make any effort to teach them Sallies and Mammies how to live. They seem to think that a knowledge of how to conduct themselves and make the most of their opportunities will come by Nature, as Dorothy Dix thought reading and writing did, so they don't bother to try to teach their girls anything except what used to be called "Book learning."

Never was there a greater mistake, for while the occasional girl genius rates the higher education, what the average girl needs is to be taught how to make the most of herself and the life she is destined to lead, and that basic fact most mothers entirely ignore. You must assume from Mother's attitude towards her daughters that they were all going to marry millionaires who would coddle and spoil them, so there was no use in Sally and Mammie learning how to do any practical work, or acquiring any technique for getting along with a temperamental husband.

It may seem too bad to blame Mom for the messes that her children so often make of their lives, but it is only too true that the sins of the parents are visited on their children and the cherished daughters have to pay a cruel price for their mothers never having taught them how to live.

It is a sad truth that most of the marriages that end in divorce are the result of mothers never having taught their daughters how to be wives. They never have drilled Mammie and Susie in the technique of rubbing their husbands' fur the right way. They don't even know how to cook.

Husbands Discontented
And so when the young husband ceases to be a great lover and becomes just a provider, and when he sits down to meals that would give an ostrich stomach ulcers and sees his salary going into the garbage can, the domestic bravis start that end in the wreck of another home.

And—God help them—the marriages that break so many hearts because Mother never has taught her beloved daughter anything about men, or how to pick out a husband, or even to analyze her own feelings! I get hundreds of letters from girls who tell me that they think that they are in love, but they are not certain. Or that they are going to marry a drunkard, or a roue, or a ne'er-do-well, but who SAYS he will reform.

Forewarned is forearmed, and many a marriage that has dragged an unhappy program girl down into the gutter with a drunken husband would have been prevented if only her mother had taught her, from her cradle up, to look with scorn on weaklings and delinquents.

And the poor little, stumbling, foolish girl-child who stumbles into the pit before they are old enough and wise enough to realize their danger, what sorrow, what shame for them and their families would have been saved if only their mothers had taught them what they needed to know about living.

Tammany Slaps at N. Y. Mayor

New York, July 12 —(AP)—A majority faction of Tammany Hall today slapped Mayor William O'Dwyer by removing his supporter, Frank J. Sampson, as leader of the powerful city Democratic organization.

Tammany's executive committee then immediately named Manhattan Borough President Hugo L. Rogers as new Tammany leader. Rogers is the first Jew to head the Tammany organization.

O'Dwyer twisted the Tammany tiger's tail when he opposed its designation of General Sessions Judge Francis L. Valente as Democratic candidate for New York county surrogate.

The mayor and Sampson backed O'Dwyer's bid when he nominated Valente for the nomination.

O'Dwyer seemed to comment on the Sampson ouster.

"I went up to my room on the third floor, to leave my bag and change my dress. I came back in a minute or two. Then, because the house was so quiet and I didn't hear anyone stirring, I thought about the front door and thought I oughtn't leave it unlocked. I went in the hall and to the library, to look out the window to see if anyone was in, one of the cars. Then I saw the door was open."

"When the girl shuddered and halted, Talent said, 'You mean that you saw the broken window and the glass on the floor?'"

"Yes, and the clock had been knocked over and the drawers were blowing from the open window."

"And it was while you were in the library that you noticed the electric lights at the wall near the door, is that right?"

"The switch for those lights is in the hall,"

Talent moved his chair, leaned toward the girl and bestowed upon her his most amiable smile. "This is all very important to us, Stella, and you're being very helpful. Now I have to ask you a question. I want to be sure you won't take offense at it. Just believe me it's very important. When you went into the library from the kitchen, were you smoking a cigarette and in your fright did you drop it on the rug and then march it out with your foot?"

"The girl's eyes blazed. 'No! Of course, not. I would never dare smoke in the house, except in my own room.'"

"Remember, I asked you not to be afraid." "Well, excuse me. But I did see the cigarette you're talking about, mashed out on the rug."

"Oh, that helps fine. You saw it. Well, after that Stella, after you left the library, what did you do?"

"I went up the back stairs, and I knocked at Mrs. Sterling's door. When there was no answer I . . ."

"Take it easy, Stella." "I pushed open the door and I just took one look and I . . ."

"Try to not remember what you saw. Did you go into the room? Just tell me what you did."

"I couldn't go in the room, it was so horrible. I knew Mrs. Sterling was dead. I crossed the hall to Mr. Sterling's room. I pounded on his door and then pushed the door open. He wasn't there. His bed hadn't been slept in."

"And then?" "I came down the front stairs. I opened the front door wide because I was afraid. I used the telephone in the hall and called for the police, then I sat near the door and waited for them to get here."

Mississippi to Support Ben Laney

Philadelphia, July 12 —(AP)—Mississippi's 22-vote delegation to the Democratic convention voted unanimously today to support the presidential candidacy of Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas.

Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, said Alabama will yield to Arkansas on the first nominating roll call and that Laney will be placed in nomination ahead of President Truman.

The South Carolina delegation to the convention agreed to "go along" with other Southern delegations in supporting Laney.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, whom the delegation was pledged to support if he had "a chance," suggested the move to support Laney. He said he would be "glad to release the delegates from their pledges."

State Senator George Warren of Hampton, a Thurmond spokesman, offered the motion to support Laney at a delegation caucus prior to the first convention session.

Laney announced last night he would accept the nomination by Southern delegates who are opposing President Truman and the inclusion of any of his civil rights program in the party's platform.

Addressing the Mississippi delegates, Wright predicted "Laney will get more electoral votes than Truman, indicating that Democrats intend to nominate him at a convention tentatively called for July 1 at Birmingham, Ala."

Laney headquarters have been opened at the Benjamin Franklin hotel.

Majors Hold Exhibition Ball Games

New York, July 13 — (AP)—The annual All-Star game usually means three days off for players not selected for either the National or American League squads but that isn't the case this year.

Yesterday saw seven major league teams engage in exhibition games at night.

With the exception of a game between the St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia Phillies at Cooperstown, N. Y., all of the contests took place at night.

At Cooperstown, the Browns won a battle of homers from the Phils. 7-5. The Browns socked five round-trippers, the Phils two, Andy Annold, Don Land and Pitcher Bryan Stephens one apiece for the Browns while Del Ennis and Gran Hammer hit one each for the Phils.

The Brooklyn Dodgers were trounced 15-8, by their Montreal International League farm hands before 17,809 hooding fans at Montreal.

Pittsburgh's Pirates also were defeated, 5-1, by their Indianapolis farm club of the American Association at Indianapolis.

At Buffalo, N. Y., the New York Giants, led by Clint Hartung and Les Layton who hit homers, downed the Buffalo Bisons of the International League, 8-2.

The Philadelphia Athletics, behind the four-hit pitching of Bob Savage, Charley Harris and Les McCrabb, blanked the Wilmington Interstate League Blue Rocks, 3-0, at Wilmington.

Cleveland's American League league-leading Indians trounced their Dayton Class A Central League farm team, 16-1, at Dayton, Ohio.

Helium, discovered in the sun, was named after the Greek word "helios" (sun).

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

New York, July 13 — (AP)— From Texas, where men have the habit of saying what they think, comes the roundabout report of a small hubbub involving the Austin Pilgrimage of the Class "B" Big State League and an umpire who shall remain nameless.

It was a game in which two Austin players were bounced, three fist fights broke out in the stands, a rabbit interrupted the game by running across the field and two balls were in play at one time.

The climax of the comic criticism came when the umpire stalked majestically across to the Austin bench and proclaimed: "The next guy who says I stink will be thrown out of the game."

And finally, when the tossing and other incidents were completed, Austin Manager Hank Dana asked: "Why don't you go back to that Class 'D' League where you came from?"

The umpire didn't hesitate before replying: "By golly, I wish I was back there. I was making more money there than I am here."

It was in another, instant league, the Pony, that Umpire Al Chaskey obtained his duties during a game because of high blood pressure. . . . But it was bound to happen somewhere.

Natural Question

The College Public Relations Association made elaborate preparations for its recent four-day meeting in Denver — but neglected to keep the press informed about such routine matters as dates, times and speakers.

So when one Denver scribe mounted the rostrum to address the sports section, his first remark was: "Who the heck is press-agents?"

Women Are Stepchildren of Politics

By CYNTHIA LORY

Philadelphia, July 12 (AP).—Women in politics are like stepchildren and have no one but themselves to blame for it, Mrs. India Edwards said today.

"They are certainly not treated with equality in politics," the executive director of the Democratic National committee's women's division told a news conference. Where they are asked to run, it's usually in a place where the men don't think there's much chance they'll be elected, sometimes they fool the leaders.

Then Mrs. Edwards proceeded to indict her own sex.

"I think (Women) get in politics exactly what they'll take. They should get in there and do the hard work, and then fight for position. They aren't as mature politically as men. There's more jealousy and backbiting among them."

"Men can have political and personal disagreements but forget them when it's time to work together. But you can go out and find women pulling each other apart when they should be pulling together."

"And I think there's more prejudice by women against women than there is by men."

She tempered her attack with a new kind words, however.

"Naturally a woman who is a housewife, a mother and in the home most of the time isn't going to have the same chance to form opinions that business and professional women have," she said. "But I think few of them have blind faith in the political opinions of their husbands. If they did, we (the women's division) might as well shut up shop now."

President Truman, she said, was in an unfortunate position when asked about his record of appointing women to federal posts.

"He's constantly being compared to President Roosevelt," she explained, "and they are comparing Roosevelt's record over 12 years with Truman's three. Actually, it's not a bad record."

"His approach is different. President Roosevelt had the good fortune, states F. E. Smith, Assistant County Agent for negro work.

Air Supply for Berlin Just Enough

By WALTER RUNDLE

Berlin, July 12. —(UPI)—Anglo-American efforts to supply the western sectors of Berlin by air have not failed—but they are barely holding the line against the Soviet threat of starvation for nearly 2,500,000 persons in the German capital.

This fact was revealed today by an official of the American military government, coincident with reports in reliable sources that attempts would be made to triple the air transport fleet assigned to the task of feeding and supplying the U. S., British and French sectors of Berlin.

L. J. Steck, chief of the food and agriculture section of the American military government, said food stocks in the western sectors are sufficient "for at least four weeks."

At the start of 20-day-old Russian surface blockade, stocks were described as adequate for about a month.

There was no explanation of the contradiction of Steck's report with previous much more optimistic appraisals of the situation. Only a few days ago, American officials were saying that the Berlin air supply effort—the greatest peacetime air lift of history—had gone over the top.

At that time, it was said that planes were flying in food twice as fast as it was being consumed in the western sectors, and it was suggested that by July 15 there would be enough food in Berlin to maintain the present rations until at least Sept. 1.

But even before Steck's discouraging report, there had been indications that all was not well. Top level authorities, both American and British, had been reported as showing concern.

Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor, returned tone to have one of the world's greatest people at his elbow—Mrs. Roosevelt. She knew all the women who were accomplishing something. She was always ready to suggest one of them for a position that opened up.

"Mrs. Truman is a lovely woman. I wish she had had more press contacts. But she's very reserved, shy and it's hard for her to meet people, be casual and informal. She has been a housewife and a mother and has never been in the position of Eleanor Roosevelt in advising her husband."
